Top Brass Drop Like Flies

Deaths Of Soviet Military Bigwigs Breed Purge Rumor

NEW YORK, April 18—(AP)—Moscow has announced, in the past half year, the deaths of 15 Russian generals and admirals—some of them rather young.

The appearance of such obituaries so frequently in the Soviet press naturally arouses speculation in the west over the possibility of a new purge in the Soviet Union. However, there has been no hint in the advices which pass through Moscow censorship that a purge actually is under way.

Even if the Soviet press has reported all the deaths of the top military brass, a rather high mortality rate is indicated, particularly when a number of the officers were in their forties.

Other high-ranking Soviet functionaries also have passed away recently. They include Peter Anurov, a counselor first class in the Soviet foreign ministry. His age was not given in the March 5 death notice, but it said the death was "untimely." Another such was Anatoli Kopytov, minister of Cinematography, who died March 10. He was only 43.

Floodway Plan Brings Debate

Mahoning - Grand Project Draws Fire

WASHINGTON, April 18—(AP)—An economic battle between two of the nation's major steel-producing districts—Pittsburgh, Pa., and Youngstown, O.—appeared to be shaping up in the nation's capital today.

The conflict centers on a $54,664,000 Mahoning-Grand River floodway project in Ohio, now before the board of Army Engineers for Rivers and Harbors.

Friends and foes of the project are giving testimony. The hearing will continue today and tomorrow.

The floodway calls for building a dam on the Mahoning River near Warren, O., and cutting a channel to connect the Mahoning and Grand Rivers. Spring flood waters would be collected in a reservoir to be used when river levels are low in the dry summer months.

Backers of the proposal say "Pittsburgh interests" are fighting it to "undermine and discourage the industrial growth of our (Mahoning River) valley" for selfish reasons.

The issue was described by Richard Seiple of Warren, O., as whether "Pittsburgh interests" would be allowed to place obstacles in the valley's industrial growth.

Rep. Michael J. Kirwin (D-O) of Youngstown, told the board that during World War II, in order to stimulate steel production, a big dam was built in the valley. "It is the duty of the board and Congress" to get the floodway project built "without waiting until another emergency exists," he said.

The board must approve the project before Congress can consider it.

Use of the impounded waters would cleanse industrial pollution from the Mahoning River and assure steel plants—which use large amounts of water—more ample supplies.

And that's where opponents object. James T. Begg of Cleveland, a former Congressman, together with others said the board could not authorize the project, insisting two-thirds of the benefits would be other than flood control.

The Upper Ohio Valley Association, composed of persons who would lose land to a reservoir, also is against the project. Members told the board they wouldn't receive sufficient prices for their land.

R. G. Breene of Dayton, an engineering consultant for the group, was to testify today. Yesterday he began a statement which he said would discredit a recommendation by the Army District Engineer at Pittsburgh.

Even after the current hearing is over, it will be at least a month before a decision is reached, newsmen were told by Brig. Gen. J. S. Bragdon, board chairman.

Father Attempted To Blow Up Family For $25,000 Insurance

LOS ANGELES, April 18—(AP)—Love for pretty red-haired airline stewardess was advanced today by police as motive for the action of a young father who sought to destroy his family by planting a time bomb on an airliner carrying them and 13 other persons.

Police Lt. C. E. Ream said Miss Betty Suomela of Hermosa Beach told him she was in love with John Henry Grant, 32, and that at the approximate time yesterday that he placed the bomb on an United Air Lines DC-3 she thought he was appearing in court getting a divorce from his wife.

The stewardess, who is not employed by United, told Ream that Grant led her to believe he would marry her after the divorce. Ream questioned the stewardess after Grant drove her car to the airport. Ream said he was convinced the stewardess was in no way implicated in the case and that she would be released.

Grant lost his nerve at the last moment and no one was injured. Just as the blue and silver United Airlines DC-3 was about to leave Los Angeles international airport for San Diego yesterday, Grant ran to the ticket counter and screamed:

"Don't let that plane take off! I just put a bag on it full of gasoline!"

At the same moment a baggage handler loading the plane out on the field dropped a heavy suitcase. It exploded and flames flared up, singeing the man's eyebrows and hair.

The baggage man, Harold Mayer, quickly extinguished the flames and tossed the suitcase out on the ground. He opened it and found an alarm clock wired to ignite a box of matches, which in turn would explode several gallons of gasoline contained in sections of an innertube. Only a small portion of the gasoline was ignited, however, and no one else was injured.

Det. Ned G. Logsdon, who arrested Grant, said the onetime toptight aviation engineer told him he was $6000 in debt. He quoted Grant as saying he planned to collect $25,000 in insurance taken out at the airport on his wife and two children.

Det. R. B. McCreddie said Mrs. Grant told him most of the debts were incurred in connection with a paternity suit involving her husband in New York several years ago.

"The last few weeks he's been very nice to me," McCreddie quoted Mrs. Grant. "Last week he told me to buy a new dress. I wondered why he was being so nice. I guess this must be the answer."

WASHINGTON, April 18—(AP)—James Bruce, director of the billion dollar arms aid program, has submitted his resignation to President Truman.

This became known today, along with his reason: The businessman-diplomat wants to return to private life.

At the same time, the President is reported to want Bruce to take on the job of ambassador to Britain when Lewis Douglas goes. Douglas has been American envoy to Britain for the past three years but has been in ill health recently. He returned to his post several months ago at the President's request with the understanding he could quit later this year.

If the 57-year-old Bruce is chosen as Douglas' successor there would be a pair of brothers representing the United States simultaneously at top diplomatic posts in Western Europe. David Bruce, James' brother, is American ambassador to France.

Informed officials told a reporter that James Bruce talked with Mr. Truman at the White House yesterday and informed him of his decision to quit, noting that he has set up an organization to ship American military supplies overseas.

The President is understood to have agreed to accept his resignation reluctantly after praising him for his service in his present post and as American ambassador to Argentina.

Bruce will return to New York temporarily, officials said, where he serves as director on a dozen corporations and will resume his business activities.

WASHINGTON, April 18—(AP)—Senate Republicans have the promise of John Sherman Cooper, new adviser to Secretary of State Acheson, that they will be kept fully informed on foreign policy making.

Cooper told a reporter after interviewing individual Republicans he feels that direct lines can be worked out to keep the Republicans abreast of what's going on at a series of international conferences beginning in Paris May 8.

Cooper, former Kentucky Senator, was named as a Republican adviser to Acheson for meetings in Paris and London of Acheson with the foreign ministers of France and Britain, as well as a conference of the North Atlantic Treaty Council.

Steel Industry Faces Possible Stringent Law

Big Steel Might Be Broken Up Under New Anti-Trust Provision

WASHINGTON, April 18—(INS)—The nation's major steel companies face the threat today of legislation that would break them up into small independent units.

Rep. Celler (D) of New York said he plans to introduce such a measure as a means of breaking up what he termed "monopolies."

The chairman of the special House group which is investigating monopolies said he would introduce an amendment to the Clayton Anti-Trust Act which would make such a move possible.

Rep. Celler, who yesterday launched an investigation of steel, said:

"I'm highly in favor of such an amendment and I'm going to battle for it. That's the crux of the entire problem."

His amendment would require the dissolution of any corporation "whose size and power is such as to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly." It would allow a firm, however, to avoid such an action if it proves that efficiency would be lessened.

The New Yorker, an Administration supporter, endorsed the proposal after it was advanced by a Columbia University economist, Dr. George J. Stigler.

Mr. Stigler asserted that the steel industry "displays important monopolistic tendencies that call for corrective social policy" and said that breaking up the largest U. S. firms would avoid the necessity of stringent government regulation.

Mr. Stigler advocated that the U. S. Steel Corp. be dissolved and possibly Bethlehem & Republic Corps. into "a considerable number of independent companies."

Assists Prosecutor For Roberts Trial

LISBON, April 18—Former Prosecutor Frank W. Springer of East Palestine has been appointed a special assistant to County Prosecutor James L. MacDonald for the prosecution of charges against former County Superintendent of Schools W. E. Roberts of Lisbon, and J. Lester Huston of Calcutta.

Grand jury indictments, returned last Tuesday, charge Mr. Roberts with embezzlement, larceny, while Mr. Roberts and Mr. Huston are jointly charged in a third indictment with conspiracy to defraud the Beaver Rural School District.

Appointment of Attorney Springer was made by Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp Monday upon application of Prosecutor MacDonald "pursuant to the general code, and the court being of the opinion that the public interest requires it."

As a special assistant, Attorney Springer will be associated with Prosecutor MacDonald and Assistant William Brokaw, in the cases which will probably head an assignment of case following arraignment of persons indicted in the court here next Monday, April 24.

D. A. V. To Hold Installation

State Officers To Preside Friday

The new Salem Lisabed American Veterans chapter will be instituted at a meeting at 8:15 p. m. Friday at the Memorial building.

William A. Sweeney of Cleveland, state commander of the D. A. V., will present the charter and install the officers who were elected last Friday. Commander Sweeney served with the U. S. Marines during World War I and was wounded. He is a former Cleveland councilman and president of the Soldiers Relief Commission of Cuyahoga county.

The state commander will be assisted in completing the chapter organization by A. L. Daniels of Columbus, state adjutant. Mr. Daniels, who is also a member of the Ohio Senate, was co-author of the Ohio state bonus bill for W. W. II veterans and was the author of the Veterans Employment Bill which was recently enacted.

District Commander John M. Anderson of Alliance also will participate in the ceremonies, said Fred Allenbaugh, newly-elected Salem D. A. V. commander.

Allenbaugh, in outlining the activity of the Salem post, said "The D. A. V. was organized in 1920 and is composed exclusively of those who served during time of war who were wounded or disabled as a direct result of service. It is the only organization of its kind ever to receive a charter from Congress. The D. A. V. specializes in assisting veterans in connection with the preparation and prosecution of their claims on war-incurred disabilities, and maintains national service officers at all offices of the Veterans Administration for this purpose."

Salem area veterans are invited to attend this meeting and questions will be answered on individual claims after the meeting. Both men and women veterans are extended the welcome by Commander Allenbaugh.

Fighting Fierce On Hainan

Nationalists Battle Reds On Beachheads

TAIPEI, Formosa, April 18—(AP)—Chinese Nationalist defenders of Hainan island were reported fighting fiercely today against 7,000 to 8,000 Communist invaders who have established two beachheads.

Nationalist ground forces claimed they have contained the Red invaders who stormed ashore early yesterday. The Nationalists asserted the Communists succeeded in landing only about half of a 15,000-man force hurled in the greatest amphibious operation against the big stronghold off South China.

Ground force commanders declared they have a good chance of wiping out the beachheads within the next 48 hours if Red reinforcements can be kept from landing. The Nationalist navy was reported to have this situation in hand, with warships deployed to cut off any Communist craft attempting to put more troops ashore.

Nationalist air force planes were attacking the Reds on the beaches, reports from Hainan said.

The Red armada moved across the 10-mile strait between Hainan and the Luichow Peninsula under cover of darkness Sunday night. The Nationalists say their warships attacked the junk fleet, sinking scores of the troop-laden craft and scattering others. The Nationalists claimed half of the 200 Red craft were sunk or prevented from accomplishing their mission.

Play To Be Repeated By Players Club

There was never a dull moment in "Arsenic and Old Lace," Salem Players Club production, in its initial performance last night in the High School auditorium. The play will be repeated tonight.

An able cast of comparative newcomers kept the action and the "bodies" rolling from curtain time at 8:15 to the final scene when E. J. Blackburn, as Mr. Witherspoon, was about to become the 13th victim of the two Brewster sisters.

The slightly mad sisters were well-characterized by Mrs. E. J. Blackburn and Mrs. Dorothy Barickman. All the parts were well played, with Horace Schwartz especially effective as the mad Teddy Roosevelt and acts the part.

Tickets may be secured at the boxoffice.

Between-acts entertainment was provided by three-year-old Diane Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wright, who danced.

Flat Accusation Answers Red Protest Note

U. S. Denies Its Craft Flew Over Soviet Territory

WASHINGTON, April 18—(AP)—The United States charged today Russian fighters shot down the missing American Navy patrol plane over open waters of the Baltic sea.

It demanded Russia punish those responsible and pay appropriate indemnity for the lives of the ten men lost in the plane.

The charge and the demand were made in a formal reply to Russia's protest of April 11 that an American plane had flown over Latvia and exchanged gunfire with Soviet aircraft on April 8.

The American note, delivered in Moscow by Ambassador Alan G. Kirk, demanded also that "the most strict and categorical instructions" be issued to the Soviet air force to prevent any new incident "so clearly calculated to magnify the difficulties of maintaining peaceful and correct international relationship."

The note flatly rejected Russia's claim that the American plane flew over Russian territory in violation of international law.

It charged the Soviets with a "violation of international law and of the most elementary rules of peaceful conduct between nations."

The 600-word counterprotest said the American investigation determined that the U. S. plane involved was the Navy four-engine Privateer patrol craft which has been missing in the Baltic area since April 8.

All American aircraft operate under strict instruction to avoid flying over any foreign territory except with express permission, the note said.

It added that the U. S. investigation convinced this government the Navy plane did not fly over "any Soviet or Soviet occupied territory or territorial waters adjacent thereto."

In view of the findings, the note said, "it must be concluded that Soviet military aircraft fired upon an unarmed American plane over the open sea following which the American airplane was lost."

When the text of the communication was released here, a State Department spokesman, Press Officer Michael J. McDermott, also made a formal statement which rebuked Russia for failing to show the "slightest evidence of any concern" over the fate of the 10 missing Americans.

By contrast, he praised the non-Communist Scandinavian countries for their active efforts in the rescue search.

This supplementary statement said the investigation determined "an unarmed American Navy plane with ten persons aboard was shot down by Soviet fighter planes over the open waters of the Baltic Sea."

More sharply worded than the note itself, the statement also said Russia "ostentatiously" decorated the Soviet airmen "in a manner calculated to give the impression that they are being rewarded for shooting down an American airplane."

It declared the Soviet government's attitude all through the investigation "shows clearly the insincerity of its oft-proclaimed desire for peaceful relations with the United States and the non-Soviet world in general."

In Moscow Ambassador Kirk had an appointment with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko at 9 a. m. to deliver the note.

In their original protest, the Russians described the plane as of the B29 type. Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky said it ignored orders over Soviet territory to land and fired on Soviet planes. He said a Russian plane returned the fire and the American plane disappeared toward the sea.

Senator Denies Audience Hired

Humphrey Says No Truth In Charge

WASHINGTON, April 18—(AP)—Senator Humphrey (D-Minn.) told the Senate last night there was no basis to accusations that a Minnesota farm audience was hired to hear a speech by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan.

The charge was made last Tuesday by Senators Aiken (R-Vt.) and Ferguson (R-Mich.). Aiken said 5,000 Minnesota farm committeemen were promised regular pay and travel allowances as "special inducements" to attend a St. Paul meeting at which Brannan and Humphrey spoke.

Ferguson agreed with Aiken that this was an illegal use of farm funds voted by Congress, and demanded action by the Department of Justice.

Humphrey declared the meeting was non-partisan and that sponsors of the meeting "acted in the public interest." He added that Senator Thye of Minnesota, a Republican, had been invited to address the meeting but was unable to attend.

Humphrey said if he had defended Aiken by some of the remarks he made at the meeting about the Aiken-Hope farm bill passed by the 80th Congress, "I publicly apologize."

At The Theaters

RALPH RICHARDSON, Olivia deHavilland and Montgomery Clift star in "The Heiress" at the State Theater Friday and Saturday.

"All The King's Men" at the State Theater tonight stars Broderick Crawford as a ruthless politician who uses everything and everybody, including a lovely aristocrat (Joanne Dru), his worldly wise secretary (Mercedes McCambridge), a newspaperman (John Ireland) and his adopted son (John Derek), in his drive to reach the governor's mansion.

Bette Davis portrays a shrewish, beautiful woman who betrays Joseph Cotten, her country doctor husband, when she sets out to captivate David Brian, a wealthy landowner who can help her escape the small town she hates. The film, "Beyond The Forest," is at the State Wednesday and Thursday.

The second picture is, "Backfire," with Gordon MacRae, Virginia Mayo, Edmond O'Brien and Dane Clark. The story deals with a war veteran who becomes involved with the underworld when he tries to solve the disappearance of his buddy.

Olivia deHavilland is a shy, self-conscious girl who falls in love with Montgomery Clift, a handsome, unreliable man-about-town in "The Heiress" at the State Friday and Saturday. The plot centers around her revenge when her father proves she is admired only for her money.

Ralph Richardson and Miriam Hopkins also co-star.

Gene Autry doubles as a mule driver in addition to being a marshal in "Mule Train" at the Grand Friday and Saturday in order to expose killers trying to sabotage a dam-building project. The first chapter of the serial, "Radar Patrol vs Spy King," is also on the bill.

Essay, Poster Contests Hold Attention In SPIC Program

Two pre "Operation SPIC" contests have passed the halfway mark with indications that both are drawing interest.

The poster contest sponsored by the Salem Business and Professional Women's Club is assured of many entries as pupils from the seventh grade and up in Salem's public and parochial schools prepare drawings on various phases of the "Operation SPIC," which means Salem Paints, Improves and Cleans campaign.

The essay contest, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, under whose auspices the overall campaign is being held, is holding the interest of residents. Early entries in the contest lean heavily to suggestions of things the public bodies should do to make Salem a more attractive city.

Entries in the essay contest should be on the subject, "What I Would Do To Improve Salem." Contestants may write on any phase of the clean-up, fix-up, paint-up campaign. Entries should be 500 words or less and sent to Box 145, Salem. An electric mixer, valued at $50, will be the first prize. It may be seen in the Firestone Electric store window. Other merchandise prizes will go to runners up. Deadline for entries has been moved to May 1, start of the drive.

Judges for the poster contest are: Howard Dodge, James Lyle, Arthur Vaughn, Mrs. Charles McCorkhill, Tom Rowlands and Mildred Franke, Miss Gertrude Bura, B. P. W. club committee chairman, said today. The contest closes Friday, April 21, and all posters must be in the hands of the art department heads at the High School, Junior High School and St. Paul's school by that date.

The posters are 14 by 22 inches on colored cardboard. They all contain the wording "Operation SPIC" and the dates of the drive May 1 to June 30. The theme of the poster is based on the words "Salem Paints, Improves, Cleans."

The best poster from each grade will receive a recognition award given by the women's club at special ceremonies during the campaign. Posters, including winners and the best of the non-winners, will be displayed in downtown show windows during the drive.

Disabled Voter Ballots Available This Week

EAST LIVERPOOL, April 18—Disabled voters' ballots became available Monday for persons who will be unable to get to the polls for the May 2 primaries because of illness or disability.

Frank O'Hanlon, clerk of the county election board, said no ballots were issued on the first day, although one voter requested an application. The applicant must certify the nature of his illness or disability that will keep him away from his voting place. Previously the law required a doctor's certificate.

Deadlines are the same as for absentee voters' ballots, Mr. O'Hanlon explained. The tickets test closes Friday, April 21, and may be issued through Thursday, April 27, and must be back in the board's office by noon April 28.

To be eligible for an absentee ballot, a voter must be outside Columbiana county and at least 10 miles from his home precinct on election day.

'GOP Must Get Out And Fight,' Rhodes

TOLEDO, April 18—(AP)—The Republican party must get out and fight if it wants even a "promise of victory," Mayor James A. Rhodes of Columbus told a GOP rally last night. Swinging into Lucas county in his campaign for the Republican nomination for governor, Rhodes hit the party "stuffed shirts."

"The time has come for the Republican party to step out of its stuffed shirts, roll up its sleeves and knuckle down to work—the work of electing a generous slate of state officials to remove the stigma of 1948 when the Ohio GOP witnessed one of the worst defeats in history," he asserted. The mayor said only a fighting Republican party can "offer a promise of victory."

Four Robberies In A Year Hit Salesman

CLEVELAND, April 18—(AP)—Jewelry Salesman Clarence A. Trau, 38, was robbed yesterday for the fourth time within a year.

The University Heights salesman for a New York concern, said two masked gunmen met him at his car behind a Broadway jewelry store. They stole unset diamonds and other jewelry reportedly worth about $25,000.

Trau, however, refused to confirm the estimate of the loss.

Two weeks ago Trau's automobile was stolen from a downtown parking lot and found abandoned with its trunk forced open. Police recovered 181 rings a neighborhood youngster found and took home after the car thieves had fled.

Last Dec. 13, Robbers took gems worth several thousand dollars from Trau in the driveway of his home, and earlier last year he was robbed of other gems in Detroit.

Convicted Spy At Party, Hid Under The Bed

NEW YORK (AP)—We were sitting around after dinner last night, dawdling over the coffee, when I discovered that once I almost had a brush with treason. It's kinda glamorous in a sordid way, and I'm rather sorry now that I missed the ruckus.

We were discussing those two fascinating new books, "Treason" and "The Seeds of Treason" with two old friends of our salad days when Mun said "I guess you remember the night we all went to the party at Joe Blow's and Mildred Gillars was there."

"Mildred Gillars?" I said, and you couldn't have told the difference between me and Vera Vague.

"Sure," said my spouse, "the one that was convicted of treason in Washington for broadcasting in Berlin for the Nazis during the war."

"Oh, sure!" I said, "that one." "Remember the night she came to Joe's party and hid under the bed when police came?" Mun insisted.

"Never in all my life did I ever go to a party where the police came or anyone hid under a bed,"

I said indignantly. "Hear, hear!" cried my spouse. "OH, COME OFF it," said Mun. "Don't be stuffy. She certainly hid under the bed and the police certainly came."

"Honestly, Mun, I don't believe we were there," said my spouse. "Look, you remember Joe Blow, don't you?" he demanded. "He was the one who thought he was a Scott Fitzgerald character," Evie volunteered helpfully.

"Certainly, I remember Joe," said my spouse. "Whatever became of old Joe?"

"Lord knows!" Mun replied. "But in those days, and that must be at least twenty years ago, he was a friend of this Mildred Gillars. She was a blond."

My husband, who has a long memory for blonds, shook his head in the negative.

"Well, the four of us certainly went to Joe's party together. I remember just as plainly as if it were yesterday," said Evie.

"I never went to Joe's but once in my life," I declared. "I do remember going to his house just once, and leaving early because Add and I had another engagement."

"Then you certainly missed the best part!" said Mun. "This Mildred Gillars was a chorus girl or doing something in the theater then. Never saw her but that once, but she was a live wire."

"That's the understatement of the week," said Evie acidly. "Anyway, around midnight, Mildred thought the party was getting pretty dull and she decided to live it up," Mun went on.

"And her idea of living up a party was to go downstairs and throw a heavy garbage can through the plate glass window of a little grocery store about four doors down the street," Evie contributed.

NO ONE KNEW what she'd done until the cops began banging on the door of Joe's apartment," Mun continued. "It seems they were in the next block when Mildred heaved the can—"

"And when this Mildred saw the cops, she dived into the bedroom and under the bed," explained Evie. "It was one of those beds with a spread touching the floor all the way around—"

"Anyway, the cops told Joe what had happened," Mun took over, "but old Joe said none of his guests would do such a dastardly thing and would the cops—after witnessing such a frightful piece of vandalism—have a drop of bathtub gin to soothe their nerves?"

"So they did," said Evie, "and their nerves must have been vibrating like a harp after the 'William Tell Overture' because they lapped up enough gin and canned grapefruit juice—remember those awful days? ... to soothe a cage of lions."

"They never did get around to searching the apartment," Mun added, "but Mildred had to stay under the bed for two or three hours because the cops liked the party and decided to stay. "That's the only time we ever saw her," he concluded. "But it's too bad you didn't stay. You sure missed a big party."

TENDER SWISS STEAK makes a favorable meat course, accompanied by carrots and green beans.

The Cookbook

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Beef Is America's Favorite Meat

BEEF steak and rib roasts are the pin-up cuts of meat to most Americans. Runners-up in this popularity contest are hamburger, Swiss steaks, stews and pot roasts.

Cookery of beef varies according to the cut and the grade. For special meals you want the top-quality steaks for broiling or the rib roasts for oven roasting. However, the everyday budget calls for the thrifty cuts, the lower grades of beef which lend themselves to braising. These are the basis for Swiss steak, stew, or pot roasts and the many delicious dishes prepared from ground beef.

Whether the cut is one large piece such as a chuck or rump roast, or a 2-inch-thick blade or round bone pot roast, round or flank steak, or cut into cubes for stewing, the same method of cookery is used. Cover meat with seasoned flour, brown in a small amount of fat and, with a little liquid added, cook slowly in a covered container until tender.

The terms "roasting" and "pot roasting" are often confusing. Roasting, or oven roasting, where the meat is cooked in an open pan in the oven, is the method used for only the highest quality tender cuts. No water is added during the cooking. This is sometimes referred to as a "dry heat method of cookery."

Pot Roasting

Pot roasting is the method described above in which the meat is first browned and cooked in a covered pan either in the oven or on top of the range in a small amount of water or other liquid, because the liquid added is needed to help tenderize the less tender cuts of meats cooked in this manner. It is sometimes referred to as "moist heat cookery."

Typical of the pot roasting or braising method of cookery are the many ways of preparing and serving the ever-popular round steak. This cut, even though called "steak," should be cooked in a liquid to make it tender.

In purchasing round steak, plan on one-half to one-third pound per serving. Have the steak cut one to two inches thick for Swiss steak. Season and place on a well-floured cutting board. Cover with flour and pound with a meat hammer or edge of heavy saucer. Continue to turn, flour, and pound meat until all flour is taken up by the steak. Brown and braise in a small amount of liquid.

Cook with tomatoes or tomato juice in a small amount of water with browned onion and green pepper rings. Whatever your favorite, for ease and variation of service, cut the round steak into individual pieces before cooking. (NEA Service, Inc.)

Francis Wallace's Political Preview

Humor--of-the-week department: Last week it was that I lived in New York, not Bellaire. No more settled that, than up popped the astounding revelation that I had voted in the '48 Democrat primaries. This one happens to be true. So what? . . . and Who Cares? It's a matter of record that I made Republican speeches in the '44 campaign—on the same program with Taft, Clarence Brown and Jim Stewart at Columbus; and a 15-minute radio transcription that was played over the state that year. I've voted and talked Republican in all national and most state offices since '38.

There just wasn't sufficient reason until now to make me change officially. It isn't easy, you know. And I hope to bring quite a few with me formally on May 2. If nominated, I will make my main appeal to other registered Democrats who have had about all they can swallow of county fair medicine show barkers in high office; who think more of country than of party affiliation. So just what's wrong with that, folks? Where's the sense in trying to shut the gates of the fort against reinforcements?

The Republican Party is a fort, you know, the fort of Americanism, wherein are being gathered all of the people who still have sense enough to see clearly the values that made America great; who still have the courage to defend these things, even against brothers; and who have the intelligence to defend them. Up to now we've been outsmarted by commies and phonies and self-seeking political tricksters whose tongues have been quicker than the minds of too many well-meaning people.

Who are gathering in the fort? All those who believe in God as against atheism; in the rights of the individual as against the herding of humans by the master state; in capitalism as against socialism in any of its forms—including the British and American forms as well as the Russian. And you may as well face this one, clearly in nationalism as against internationalism; in putting the interests of our own country ahead of the interests of the rest of the world.

Open the gates, Americans, gather in everybody who still believes in America. We're going to need them all and all their weapons. But close the doors on all the old prejudices. We can no longer afford them. Strong men, wise men, American men, stand together in the fort.

Tomorrow's Another Game

THE National Anthem and Old Glory raised in suitable ceremonies have opened another major league baseball season in the nick of time. Here's why:

Everybody has his own fixed ideas about baseball, just like everything else. But as far as second-guessing in baseball is concerned, it's still a free country. And tomorrow is another day. Next month is another month. Next year is another year. Hope springs eternal—which isn't just like everything else.

There's always another chance in baseball. Tomorrow's another day. Nothing is forever, except the umpire's decisions, which are sometimes good and sometimes bad, instead of being all bad.

Millions of high-spirited citizens watch ball games; no others need apply. They glow with pride when their favorites look good, die a thousand deaths when beseated managers and myopic umpires make their heroes look like chumps. They shout approval or roar disapproval—and that's as it should be.

Baseball is the last frontier of uninhibited freedom of opinion. Everything goes but pop bottles, because they might hurt someone and spoil the fun. If wars could be fought without bloodshed—with all lethal weapons barred and all opinions freely and vigorously voiced—they would be like baseball. Or if all affairs of humankind could be wound up when the last man was out and a fresh start made the next day, that would be like baseball. But that's impossible. So Americans turn to baseball to preserve their sanity. The 1950 season hasn't opened a day too soon.

Budenz May Shed Light

SENATOR McCARTHY of Wisconsin declared same time ago that he would stand or fall on his case against Owen Lattimore, whom he has described variously as a Communist, a Russian agent, and the chief architect of American foreign policy in the Far East.

Unless McCarthy has more additional evidence up his sleeve, it seems evident now that the case against Lattimore will come to a climax with the testimony of Louis Budenz, one-time Communist editor. McCarthy told the subcommittee this witness would swear that Lattimore either is, or was, a member of the Communist party and is a Soviet agent.

If the former Red testifies as McCarthy said he would, then the charges against Lattimore will take on substance. But if Budenz disclaims any knowledge of Lattimore's alleged Communist ties, or merely says he heard someone else declare Lattimore had such affiliations, the case as of that moment will stand unproved.

Long-Range Weather

AS IS NOW generally known, the U.S. Weather Bureau is experimenting with a long-range forecasting system. Instead of predicting the weather one or two days in advance, it is trying to give an approximate idea of forthcoming conditions during the next 30 days. Sample: It will be colder than usual until May 15.

The bureau is being cautious about this; it frankly admits the whole thing's experimental. That is a proper scientific approach to a ticklish matter. But it may be questioned whether or not weather ever should be approached scientifically.

The almanacs which guided generations of earlier Americans through the seasons and still are relied upon heavily were grossly unscientific. They predicted the weather not 30 days in advance but more than a year in advance. And they did surprisingly well, considering that they had only a 50-50 chance of being right.

This was known to all almanac readers, but it didn't matter. Because all the readers wanted was an opinion about the forthcoming weather; if the opinion turned out to be incorrect, all was forgiven. Otherwise, the almanac was uncanny in its accuracy. The U.S. Weather Bureau should take a lesson from the compilers of almanacs and be bold. If it hit the weather on the head as often as the almanacs used to, it would claim credit for uncanny accuracy, which would be a novelty.

Gas Explosion

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S veto of the Kerr bill to bar federal rate-setting for natural gas sold by independent producers is a lighted match tossed into an explosive mixture of politics.

The effect on the gas industry itself is problematic, because the veto only maintains circumstances already existing. The federal government does not now regulate rates for independent producers. The Kerr bill was intended to bar it from exercising its potential power to do so.

But there is nothing problematic about the effect of the veto on Democratic politics. Senator Kerr of Oklahoma is a party stalwart. Many other loyal Democrats from gas-producing states were lined up with him on the issue. Mr. Truman was given a Hobson's choice between two factions of Democrats. Those who opposed the Kerr bill are, in the main, members of both parties opposed to creeping federal regulation. Mr. Truman chose to string along with them. The question now is whether he can persuade Senator Kerr and his Democratic associates to string along with him. He has kicked them in the teeth.

The fundamental issue in American politics is whether or not the American people should check the growth of big government. The big-government crowd demands more power for itself. The opposition believes big-government, already too big for the country's own good, should be slapped down whenever it makes another grab for power. That issue is dividing the Democratic party. It is leading to a new and more realistic alignment in political beliefs—the big-government faction vs all people who believe politicians should be servants, not masters.

How Not to Solve the Farm Problem

Bipartisanship On Foreign Policy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON
SENATOR TOM CONNALLY, Democrat, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has come forth with a plan for bipartisan cooperation on foreign policy which has been endorsed by Secretary of State Acheson and will be widely commended. But it doesn't go far enough.

To set up a system of cooperation between the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by means of eight different subcommittees as Senator Connally suggests, does, indeed, keep those Republican and Democratic members informed, but there is no procedure devised as yet whereby other members of the Senate will be kept posted, too. It will do little good to familiarize a few members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and to give them hush-hush accounts of what is being done if the full committee doesn't get periodic reports and if the other members of the Senate are not advised concurrently.

There is grave doubt, also, whether the precedent which says that only the Senate Foreign Relations Committee members should be consulted by the Department of State isn't really outworn and out of date. It is a legacy from the days when the Senate was asked to ratify many treaties with foreign governments.

cent years by the device of appointing joint committees. The joint committee on internal revenue has been very effective and the same may be said of the joint committee on atomic energy.

The objection that State Department secrets wouldn't be kept if too many members of Congress were involved in the making of foreign policy can be overcome by dividing the large committees into small subcommittees composed of members from both Houses. It is significant that in recent years members have become impressed with the importance of keeping state secrets. There have been no important leaks from the sessions of the joint committee on atomic energy.

PROGRESS is indicated by the Connally plan. But it will not be effective in achieving the desired ends unless it is extended to include House members and unless there is some method devised to keep members of both Houses outside the committee well informed. Looking back to the votes in the House when the Korean program was imperiled this year, and when the European Economic Cooperation Program was slashed last year and later revised in the Senate, it is apparent that if there is to be unpartisan approach in the making of foreign policy the groundwork must be laid long in advance of the time the measures dealing with foreign affairs come up for debate in Congress.

Much of the foreign-policy making of today involves appropriations by Congress. This means that the House is as important, if not more so, than the Senate. Likewise revenue-raising bills must originate in the House. If large sums are to be provided either for foreign aid or for national and international defense it is essential that the House of Representatives, which must raise the money, be consulted through its appropriation committees in the formulation of foreign policy.

A Claim to Fame

By TRUMAN TWILL

IT'S NOTHING, but when others tell about unusual accomplishments, such as being able to swim under water or make a good showing on the links, I pipe up with my claim to fame.

I am an assistant paperhanger.

This is nothing to shrug off—not when the boss paperhanger happens to be the lady of the house.

She spends much of her time while being a boss paperhanger admiring the general effect. Meanwhile, the assistant is frantically busy with all five hands trying to keep the effect from being ruined by any of the 78 things that can happen while wallpaper is being hung.

The first 15 of these are, in the order of their importance:

1. Penetration of fragile, wet wallpaper by a thumb.
2. Arranging pieces of sticky wallpaper in wrong positions.
3. Drying out of paste on back of wallpaper while assistant paperhanger is frantically trying to avert same by taking care of time-consuming details before paste dries out.
4. Cutting paper too short. There is no way to stretch wallpaper.
5. Paper falling on assistant paperhanger while he is trying to slap it into position overhead.
6. Assistant paperhanger falling on paper while trying to slap it into position.
7. Paste in the eye. Also paste in the ear, nose, mouth, hair and pockets.
8. Mortal wounds from paperhanger's tools cached in pockets. The tools are similar to those used by surgeons in cutting human tissues.
9. Explosions of temper set off by ill-timed and ill-advised remarks by sidewalk superintendents who resent such minor aberrations as air bubbles under strips of wallpaper.
10. Torn muscles and ligaments incurred while stepping off stepladders into space; there is no place for absent-mindedness in assistant wallpaper hanging.

11. Broken bones incurred while forgetting that all God's chilluns may have wings but these are not standard equipment on assistant paperhangers.

12. Fingerprints. J. Edgar Hoover is making a collection of these in Washington, D. C. They're no good on wallpaper in the living room.

13. Mismatching. The casual passerby never notices where the bobbles were perpetrated but other paperhangers spot the boner and sneer about it.

14. Inertia. This is what happens to paperhangers after the first hour. It overtakes boss paperhangers more rapidly than assistants and is why they must sit down so often to catch their breath, leaving the assistant to thresh out such knotty problems as the fact the red cabbage rose is going to end up opposite the blue grapes.

15. The dawn. There comes a cold gray one when the assistant paperhanger realizes that if he refuses to be a party to any more paperhanging the jig's up because his assistance is invaluable.

It's nothing—being an assistant paperhanger—but then what's so unusual about swimming under water?

H-Bomb Controls, Red China No. 1 Topics

WASHINGTON
UNITED NATIONS Security Council meets again at Lake Success, N. Y., in mid-May, with Red China and control of the atomic bomb as the principal subjects of frustration.

Feelers for a new conference between Russia and the United States to discuss these and other unfinished tasks have died down here of late. This follows pretty direct statements from President Truman that the United States was not interested in talking about such things outside the United Nations.

Timing on the coming Security Council session is important. The Big Three western Foreign Ministers—Acheson of the United States, Bevin of United Kingdom and Schuman of France—will meet in Paris and London the second week in May.

Following these sessions, Foreign Ministers of all the Atlantic Pact countries will meet in London May 15-17. If there are any new Allied positions to be taken, they will be announced after these sessions. If there are no new declarations, then old policy statements will be re-affirmed as the Security Council meets.

As for the Russian position, it doesn't take much research or savvy to know what it will be. The Russians have consistently boycotted every session of a United Nations organization at which representatives of Nationalist China have been present. Whether the Russians will now boycott the Security Council itself is all that remains to be seen.

THE RUSSIANS definitely want Nationalist China kicked out of the United Nations, and the new Red China government substituted. It would be naive to imagine that the Russians will now settle for less.

On atomic bomb control, the Russian position has been made equally clear through declarations of the World Peace Congress held in Stockholm March 15-19. An effort was made to have this meeting held in the United States, for propaganda purposes, of course. When the U. S. State Department refused to grant the delegates visas to come to this country, the delegates chose the neutral Swedish capital for their sounding board. On the eve of this Stockholm conference, Secretary Acheson announced his seven-point peace plan at San Francisco. His fourth point was to negotiate for realistic and effective atomic control. At the same time, from Moscow, Stalin, Molotov, Malenkov and Beria—the top hierarchy of communism—were putting out statements on Russia's desire for peace and desire to negotiate.

Here was certainly an atmosphere which seemed hopeful, on general principles. But it was dissipated immediately when the specific resolutions of the World Peace Congress were announced from Stockholm.

"We demand the unconditional prohibition of the atomic weapon as an instrument of aggression and mass extermination of people, and the establishment of strict international control over the fulfillment of this decision."

"We will regard as a war criminal that government which first uses the atomic weapon against any country."

THIS was the declaration of the 150 rubber-stamp delegates presided over by Frederic Joliot-Curie, French atomic scientist. As propaganda, it sounded good. But as a working document it was a mere restatement of what has been the Russian position for the past four years—abolish the bomb first, then work out the controls.

The American-British-Canadian program has, in oversimplification, been to establish the workable controls first, then abolish the bomb.

James R. Newman, who was counsel for the congressional committee which drafted and put through the U. S. atomic energy law, is reviewing the four years of debate over this difference of approach in a series of four articles now running in New Republic.

It is a detailed study of inconclusiveness, important as a condensation of the record, but it leaves an average reader who merely wants peace devoid of hope.

It explains why, perhaps UN Secretary General Trygve Lie's proposal for a 20-year program of peace through a special meeting of the Security Council was no more than a one-day sensation. Much as it may be desired, it doesn't seem to have a chance.

Health To You

Epidemic Diarrhea Of Infants Serious

AT intervals during recent years there have been serious outbreaks of a highly fatal diarrhea in newborn infants which has caused great trouble to the nurseries of maternity hospitals. Attempts to find the cause have not been particularly successful.

The probabilities are that epidemic diarrhea of infants is due to a virus which has not yet been isolated and which is too small to see by ordinary means, although germs are a possibility.

As a rule the infant who is stricken appears to be healthy and thriving; suddenly the child becomes drowsy and if awakened makes a short weak cry. The temperature is not unusually high, generally being below 100.

About the same time or within a few hours, the baby begins to have loose, watery, yellowish bowel movements, without any obvious mucus, blood or pus. These watery movements come more and more frequently. Especially alarming is the loss of weight in these small infants, which may be as much as a pound within the first day. (This is sometimes one-sixth of the total weight.)

After a short time the baby no longer looks healthy but shows signs of having insufficient fluid in the system and may look very ill indeed. In severe cases a baby may die from this disease within a day or two. In most cases the disease lasts about a week; only about half recover.

Children over four weeks old and grown-ups do not seem to catch it. Infants who have gone home after exposure can develop the condition at home. Once a case develops in a nursery, it spreads rapidly to the infants in adjoining bassinets. Most of those who are likely to catch the disease do so from two to six days after exposure.

When epidemic diarrhea breaks out in a hospital nursery, preventive measures have to be begun at once. The babies who are well, but in the nursery at the time, also have to be isolated and observed closely for any signs of the disease. Visitors, of course, must be excluded during such periods not only from the babies who have become ill but also from those who were exposed. New babies must not be admitted to the nursery.

Treatment has been disappointing. No definite cure has been discovered and so far the most important measure seems to be to give the infant feedings of mothers' milk if at all possible. There is a possibility that chloromycetin or aureomycin may prove helpful.

So They Say

If we accept such glittering panaceas as the belief that a world organization capable of preventing war can now be created, we are preparing the way for our own destruction.

—Columbia University Provost Dr. Grayson Kirk.

It is quite likely that there will be some form of cold war—maybe a hot war—in the next generation. There will be a continued clash of ideologies.

—Harold Stassen, president of University of Pennsylvania.

I do not know whether the word "conscience" has any meaning these days east of the line which separates free and slave states in Europe, but let us, in God's name, appeal to the conscience of the totalitarians.

Flying Bunny

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK
IT IS VERY hard to sell a visiting rabbit on the wonders of the big city.

Yes, that's right—a rabbit.

I tried over the week-end. I gave a tour of the town to Pete, a ten-and-a-half-pound white rabbit from Minneapolis. And while I've met a lot of blase things in fur here, I never saw anyone quite as nonchalant as Pete. He preferred a carrot to the Empire State Building.

Pete's trip here came as a reward. For two weeks before Easter he toured Minnesota raising funds for crippled children. He did such a fine job that his boss, Al Smalley of St. Paul, a jeep-mate of mine in war days, decided to send him to Manhattan. I got the assignment to be his escort.

"Personally, I believe that Pete would enjoy living in New York," Smalley wrote. "He has sired 1,000 rabbits, conservatively speaking."

Pete arrived a week ago as a hitch-hopping guest of northwest airlines. He came in a comfortable cage that bore a sign saying: "Don't use the word 'hasenpfeffer' in his presence—it frightens him." Hasenpfeffer is German for "stewed rabbit."

BOREDLY ACCEPTING some food pellets, Pete kept looking around to see why Grover Whalen wasn't on hand to greet him. Then he was taken to a pet shop to rest up for a few days from his air voyage.

Figuring he was a Saturday night rabbit, I waited until that evening to show him the city. We went by cab, and the driver kept looking back at Pete nervously and asking:

"What is it?"

Pete was startled by Park avenue. He took one gander out at all the fur-covered ladies and then crouched down in his cage. He apparently thought he was in the midst of a forest of minks.

Crossing Fifth avenue he yawned. He yawned again as we went through Times Square. Pete looked a little homesick as we passed a small green park. Suddenly his pink eyes popped open in interest—we were going by a supermarket and his window was full of vegetables.

I dropped by to show Pete to the three-year-old son of a friend, and the city-born boy's eyes kindled in wonder. It was the first time he had ever seen a rabbit.

"HELLO, BUNNY. Hello, Bunny," he said lovingly, over and over, as he fed Pete some watercress. When we had to leave, the little boy looked up and said, "now let's all go see a lion."

Our next call was a Greenwich Village apartment. And Pete was the life of the party. Glad to be out of his cage, he hopped about, nuzzling people.

Then Lou Grumich, the wife of our host, played some tunes on her new zither! Pete, as befitted the first rabbit in modern history to be given a zither concert, listened intently. He was all ears. His pink eyes reddened in appreciation as she played his favorite tune, "Believe Me If All These Endearing Young Charms."

After a hearty vegetarian supper, Pete went home about midnight—rather reluctantly. He wanted to stay up all night—an effect Greenwich Village has on people as well as rabbits.

The problem then was, "What to do with Pete?" the management doesn't allow pets in our apartment. I tried to find him a nice home, but you'd be surprised how few people in Manhattan want a rabbit.

FINALLY, TEX Alexander, an office boy, said, "I'd sure like to send Pete to my sister—she'd love to have him."

"Where does she live?"

"In Paris, France."

Well, I called up a pal at American overseas airlines and told him our problem.

"Bring Pete down," he said. "We'll see he gets a good comfortable ride over."

And so Pete, the flying good-will bunny, is off by air as Minnesota's first four-footed ambassador to France.

But Pete has traveled so much already he's getting mighty sophisticated. The French are going to have to hang the Eiffel tower with lettuce if they want to impress him.

91-Year-Old Farm Hand Here Finally Gets Social Security Pay

Although a major portion of the work performed by Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Field Offices concerns people past the age of 65, it is still uncommon to deal with persons over 90 years of age. It is even more unusual to find a person who went to work under Social Security for the first time when he was over 85 years of age.

But this is exactly what was done by George Scott, who is now believed to be the oldest retired worker drawing monthly benefits in the area security field office which covers Mahoning and Columbiana Counties.

Mr. Scott, who now lives on the farm of Clarence Moyer, R. D. 4, Salem, has worked all of his life, the last three years of which have been on farms in the Salem vicinity. During all of the time, he has been working on these farms, he could have been drawing a monthly Social Security benefit of $21.84. Recently he learned that his failure to file a claim within three months after he left his job under Social Security caused him to lose $742.86, it is pointed out by the government agency.

Mr. Scott, who is a widower, filed his claim in February 1950. His payments were made effective with November 1949. Nothing can be done now to claim the payments for the 34 months which have intervened between the time he quit work and the time he made his claim.

When asked why he hadn't filed his claim sooner, Mr. Scott replied that he was able to earn his living and felt that if he had claimed these benefits it would deny larger benefits to some other beneficiary who had a greater need for them. When informed that OASI payments are not based on need but are made purely because the worker contributed to the federal system of insurance, he permitted the use of his name in order to reduce loss of payments which other workers under the same belief might suffer.

Mr. Scott was born in Tampa, Florida on July 4, 1858, and has lived in this vicinity for the past 21 years. His physical appearance belies his 91 years of age and his apparent sturdiness is an immediate indication of how he managed just four years ago to go up and down a ladder 75 to 100 times a day while in the employ of a local contractor.

Mr. Scott said he "knew the work was going to be tough" since he had to carry mortar and supplies to bricklayers but he knew he was physically equal to the task. He attributes his long life to hard work and clean living. Even now, Mr. Scott drives his own automobile about town.

YOUR GARDEN

Now Is the Time to Prune Roses

By HENRY PREE
THE removal of the protective soil and mulch about garden roses should not be started before all danger of killing frosts has passed and new growth will get an early start.

Pruning is important and should be drastic only if there are dead and broken branches. The bushes should be trimmed shortly after the first new growth appears as it best tells you which branches are alive and will produce blooms.

The wise gardener will order new and replacement roses at once and plant them as soon as the soil is workable. Roses, carefully planted in early spring, will produce an excellent crop of flowers the first season. Mound earth over them until growth starts.

Pruning of climbing roses is limited to the removal of dead and weak canes and the shortening of those which have grown out of bounds. If the plant is badly overgrown, a third of the oldest canes should be cut off at the ground level.

Prune drastically only if there are dead and broken branches. and guy wires should be made secure.

Hardwood ashes from the fireplace make an excellent fertilizer for grapes, iris, Delphiniums and roses. Keep the ashes dry and apply them as soon as cultivation begins.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Control and prevention of diseases and insects should commence just as soon as the first new leaves appear since it is from early infection that troubles arise. Choose an all-purpose dust containing Fermate and DDT. Many rosarians use lime-sulphur for the first, or dormant, application, and then change to the other solution.

The old gardener suggests scattering a mixture of four parts bonemeal and six parts hydrated lime around iris, peonies, Delphiniums and lilacs and then cultivating it into the soil.

Do not hurry to uncover protected perennials and spring blooming bulbs in the flower border. Wait until the latter part of the month since the alternate freezing and thawing are apt to dislodge the bulbs.

This same precaution also applies to the strawberry bed.

Examine all trees, shrubs and evergreens planted last autumn to make sure that they are straight and the soil is firm around the roots. Loosened stakes

Q — Please recommend some annuals, perennials, and flowering shrubs which possess fragrance as well as pleasing blooms.

A—For fragrance choose from the following: ANNUALS—Margold, mignonette, nasturtium, nicotiana, scabiosa, petunia, stock and sweet alyssum. PERENNIALS—Sweet Woodruff, hemerocallis, lily-of-the-valley, peony festiva maxima, carnations, shasta daisy, evening primrose, phlox, balloon flower and chrysanthemums. SHRUBS—Buddleia, honeysuckle, summersweet, lilacs, mock orange, rose acacia, sweet briar roses and most hybrid tea and floribunda roses.

Q — Our lot has no topsoil. What is the minimum of topsoil needed to sustain grass?

A—It is impossible to secure a permanent lawn with less than three inches of loamy topsoil. Mixing coarse gravel, manure and other organic matter with the subsoil will provide air and water drainage and enable the grass roots to go deeper into the soil.

Tribe Owners Expect More Than 60,000 At Opener Today

Lemon To Face Fred Hutchinson

Indians Appear With New Uniforms, Faces

CLEVELAND, April 18—(AP)—Cleveland and Detroit, a pair of potential longshot pennant winners, start the baseball season today before a crowd that may exceed 60,000 and certainly will be the largest at the 1950 major league openers.

The weatherman predicts a 50-50 chance of showers, but not enough to stop the contest. If the sun chases the dark clouds for several hours before the 3 p. m. (E.S.T.) starting time, the turnout may exceed last year's 63,725.

On the basis of an advance sale of 45,000, Cleveland Indians officials consider the possibility remote that the game could outdraw the all-time, major league opening day attendance high of 73,163 set here two years ago.

Pitcher Bob Lemon, who won 22 and lost 10 last year and hopes to hit the 20-games-won mark this year for the third time in a row, will fire them from the mound for the Tribe.

MANAGER RED Rolfe of the Detroit Tigers also intends to use a righthander—Freddie Hutchinson, veteran curveballer who had a 15-7 record last season. But if the temperature drops much below an anticipated 56 degrees, Rolfe says he will start Art Houtteman, a young righthander who posted a 15-10 record in 1949 in spite of severe injuries in an automobile accident during spring training.

The Indians, who edged the Tigers for third place by two games won at last season's end, are given only a 1-to-6 chance of winning the flag this year. Detroit, picked by the experts to beat out the Tribe for third place this year, are rated at 1-4 odds by the bookmakers.

Walt (Hoot) Evers, hard-hitting Detroit outfielder, is nursing torn ankle ligaments and won't play. But the Tigers have an excellent replacement for the leftfielder in Pat Mullin.

The Indians will field their first-string nine, although Manager Lou Boudreau still is feeling a groin injury received in an exhibition game slide two weeks ago. Lou's understudy at shortstop, Ray Boone, missed yesterday's final practice because of a stomach ache.

At left is Donald Ashworth of Columbus, state adjutant, who bowled on the first shift. Jefferson rolled the first ball down the alleys to officially start the bowling.

Fifty-nine teams are competing in the tournament. This Saturday and Sunday the remaining 27 will see action during the final sessions.

Several Clubs Make Player Changes As Season Begins

NEW YORK, April 18—(UP)—Clearing the decks for the opening of the baseball season today meant "back to the minors" for several players and a last-minute summons to the majors for others.

terday's final practice because of a stomach ache.

EACH TEAM has two new players in the starting lineup. For the Indians they are rookies Al Rosen, third base, and Luke Easter, right field. For Detroit they are Gerry Priddy, former St. Louis Brown, at second base, and Joe Kryhoski, an ex-New York Yankee, at first.

Rolfe thinks highly of Priddy as "steady in the field" and a long-ball hitter. And he gives his big first baseman, whom the Yankees sent to Oakland last season, a good chance of staying the full campaign.

Hampered by a knee injury, Luke Easter hit only .222 for the Indians in 21 games last season, but this year Boudreau and General Manager Hank Greenberg are confident the Negro slugger will come through with a fat crop of home runs. Rosen, likewise disappointing in his brief trial with the club last season, has shown spring-training promise of living up to his minor-league reputation.

Apart from the players, there are a number of new things about the Cleveland Indians' opener this season. The team has new owners and new style uniforms. There are new scoreboards which can be seen from seats under the upper deck and there is a new concession company which is ready with 20,000 bottles of beer, 35,000 bottles of soft drinks, 80,000 hot dogs, and "thousands of gallons" of coffee.

Match Play Begins In North-South

PINEHURST, N. C., April 18—(UP)—The gruelling match play, "lose and you're out," stage of the 50th annual North and South Amateur golf tournament begins today with just 64 of the original field of 138 left to play.

Pacing the field into the playoff play that leads to the final round on Sunday was former Pennsylvania state champion Harry H. Haverstick Jr., of Lancaster, Pa., who won the medal in qualifying play yesterday with a five-under-par 67.

Haverstick's opening opponent was A. M. Foster of New York City.

W. C. Campbell, the West Virginia legislator from Huntington, who shot a 68 to miss medal honors by one stroke, was matched against William Shields of Albany, N. Y., while defending champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, who had a 69, played Mort Reed of Rochester, N. Y.

Before the first match play event teed off at 9:15 a. m., it was necessary to settle the last

Big Sports Night

Sports fans in Salem have a big time in store for them tonight, but they won't be able to make both the feature attractions of the evening.

At the Memorial building, followers of the Salem High basketball team will attend the annual Boosters Club banquet for the squad. Newly-elected Co-captains Bob Coy and Jim Callahan will be introduced, along with the rest of Bob Miller's cagers. H. C. "Doc" Carlson of U. of Pittsburgh and Chet Smith, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Press, will speak.

At the Masonic Temple, former champion Gene Tunney will hold sway at the Chamber of Commerce annual dinner. He'll show movies and give a talk.

The two events were scheduled the same night, through an oversight. Too bad they conflict.

two qualifying places in an early-morning playoff. Darkness closed in last night before this could be done.

Billy Joe Patton of Morgantown, W. Va., and William W. Markham of East Hampton, Conn., who tied at 70 in the qualifying round, were matched against Bill Eben of Reading, Pa., and Frank K. Stevens of New Rochelle, Pa., respectively.

Pairings of other golfers who finished among the leaders in qualifying play:

Harold D. Pattock, Jr., Cleveland Heights, O., (71) vs Ray H. Taylor Jr., Pinehurst; James McHale, Oglebrook, Pa., (71) vs. Tom Strange Jr., Cincinnati; and Richard Chapman, Pinehurst, (71) vs. Philip W. Echman, Chapmansville, W. Va.

RED WINGS, ALL OUT

DETROIT, April 18—(AP)—Anxious to wind up fast, the Detroit Red Wings take another whack at the New York Rangers here tonight in the Stanley Cup championship series.

The league champion Wings, enjoying a 2-1 edge, are strong favorites to make it three in a row and get a good grip on the prize mug.

A third in a row for Detroit would put New York in a desperate situation. All the remaining games of the best-of-seven series will be played here.

Hot Indian Fans Walk To Cleveland

AKRON, O., April 18—(AP)—Three ardent Cleveland Indians fans—two in their 60's—were walking to Cleveland today to see the tribe open against Detroit.

Cleveland is about 35 miles from here. Early today they had covered about 15 miles of the distance and were still going strong.

Making the trek are Jim Leonard, 67, and L. W. (Tom) Crawford, 60, both unemployed painters, and Bill Kalman, 27-year-old furniture builder.

Leonard and Crawford, friends said, were sitting in the Blue Ribbon Cafe bemoaning the fact that they didn't have money enough to see the opening day game.

Douglas Slagle, a bartender at the cafe, offered to give them $1 apiece for tickets and expenses if they would walk. They promptly took him up and set out about 8 p. m. last night.

Kalman, a friend, trailed them in a car for a few miles and then decided to join them on the hike. "I've followed the Indians on the radio for years, but I've never seen them play," Leonard said. "This is one day I'm going to be there in the park."

They didn't make any estimate of when they expected to get to Cleveland—just "in time to see the first pitch."

Postpone Quaker's First Track Meet

The scheduled dual track meet between the Salem High Quakers and the Boardman Spartans this afternoon has been postponed Coach Frank Tarr announced today.

He explained that neither team has had enough time out of doors to prepare for actual competition. The Salem team has had only one workout on the Reilly field track prior to this week. The team has done some roadwork, however, and had four weeks of indoor workouts and calisthenics.

The Louisville-Salem dual meet Thursday afternoon on the Reilly fields will be held as scheduled, Tarr said.

Brownie Troop 3 will meet at Jerusalem Lutheran Church at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday. Hostesses will be Mrs. Clayton Sittler and daughter and Mrs. Herbert Souder and daughter.

Mrs. Anna Lou Nolsheim, Mrs. Cora Vanskiver, Mrs. May Tyson and Mrs. George Jones of the Columbiana branch of the W.C.T.U. attended a county executive meeting at the home of Mrs. Lillie Lewton in Lisbon last Friday. The Lisbon, Rogers, Damascus and Winona branches also were represented.

Pan-American and child welfare month will receive recognition in the program of the April meeting of Firestone Legion Post Auxiliary at the Legion home on N. Pearl st., Wednesday evening. Mrs. Lena Sutherland of Lisbon will speak on "Child Welfare."

The Columbiana County Council of the auxiliary will meet with Unit 374 in East Liverpool this evening.

About 65 were present, including visitors from Salem, at the meeting of York Drexler Post, V.F.W., in the post home on East Friend street last Thursday evening, when new officers were installed. County Commander Robert Stewart, past commander of Drexler Post, installing officer, was assisted by Retiring Commander Fred Dill.

Officers installed were: Commander, Robert Kesler; senior vice commander, Theron Caldwell; junior vice commander, Leroy Forney; quartermaster, Thomas Crawford; trustee for three years, Gerald Leshar; chaplain, Glenn Dickens.

A mass installation of Columbiana county V.F.W. officers will be held in Salem next Sunday.

Jack Alley of Columbiana, who has leased from the Cities Service Co. the former Buck service station at the eastern edge of town on Route 14, has sublet to the H. C. Price Pipe Line Construction Co. of Bartersville, Okla., the adjoining office rooms, which will be the headquarters of the construction company during work on the gas transmission line in this area.

About a dozen children of families who will be located here for some time on the gas line construction were enrolled in the Columbiana schools Monday morning.

Mrs. L. H. Nelson, president, and Mrs. George Burkert are representing the Columbiana branch at the world assembly of the Methodist W.S.C.S.

Lack Of Unity Hurts Industry

So Says Aviation Expert In Speech

COLUMBUS, April 18—(AP)—A lack of unity among various segments of the aviation industry has done "almost irreparable damage" to civil aviation, Rep. Carl Hinshaw (R-Calif.) said today.

The statement was contained in a speech at the meeting of the American Association of Airport Executives.

"Few members of Congress, because of the multitude of other subjects demanding their attention, have the requisite time to make a close study of aviation, nor have they the opportunity to sift through these claims and counter-claims," Hinshaw said.

"Confronted with a mass of conflicting views, they rightfully conclude that until the industry itself determines what it needs, the Congress would do well to take no action."

Hinshaw, a member of the congressional aviation policy board, said witnesses from various segments of the industry had gone before Congress and aired their "fears and jealousies" of other segments of the industry "instead of searching for a common ground of affirmative action."

"Lack of industry unity tends to kill, or at least seriously retard enactment of necessary legislation," he declared. But he added:

"I am not one who believes that an industry can or should find all the answers to its problems in action by the government. There remains a broad area in which self-help is possible, but only through united industry action."

The California congressman said that despite the great strides made by civil aviation in the last ten years, it has only made "a slight dent" in the great bulk of potential use.

While the airlines last year carried 16,000,000 passengers, he declared, "if the figure was concentrated into individuals, I doubt that more than 1,500,000 Americans traveled by airline last year."

"If our airlines could get together on a positive program of selling air travel to the millions who now do not fly any route," he said, "they would get a much greater return for their efforts than they now derive from a bewildering array of competitive promotions."

Hinshaw said installation of instrument landing systems, precision approach radar, distance measuring equipment and other technical devices has been an important factor in building public confidence in air travel.

"The availability of reliable aids to landing and the knowledge that they are making possible a high percentage of schedule completions undoubtedly has contributed heavily to increased air travel," he said.

Sure Your Plates Check? Better Look

COLUMBUS, April 18—(AP)—Are you sure your automobile license plates match?

Robert E. Foley, registrar in the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, said that according to past experience about one dozen motorists were given license plates bearing two different numbers. Which isn't too bad, considering that 2,300,000 sets are issued yearly.

That's because of a mixup in packing at Ohio Penitentiary after the tags are made, he said.

One case has come to light already—that of Charles Wilson, Ohio State Journal photographer. One of his plates read KA7195 and the other K-7194.

Foley said the deputy registrar who issued mis-matched plates can get any mistakes straightened out.

Weather Details

(International News Service)
Although scattered showers today threatened to dispel any doubts Ohioans may have concerning the return of spring, the weatherman's time schedule promised to give baseball fans a break.

"Light rains are expected later in the day," forecaster A. S. Klemetsmo said. "But chances are they'll be too late and scattered to interfere with the Cleveland Indians-Detroit Tigers game."

The mercury was expected to reach high points between 65 and 70 degrees and the weatherman predicted continued cloudy and mild weather. Lows tonight will be between 40-45 in the northwest and 45-50 in the south and east.

"It will be cloudy, windy and somewhat cooler tomorrow," Klemetsmo continued, "with temperatures averaging around 15 degrees below today's." Bureau's five-day forecast follows:

"Showers Friday or Saturday totaling one-half to one inch. Colder Thursday, rising trend Friday and Saturday. Cooler Sunday. Temperatures will average about normal in east portion and two to four degrees below normal in the west portion."

High and low temperatures for 24 hours up until midnight:

Why might there be a purge today? Stalin is aging—possibly even ill. In the not distant future the mantle of power must be passed on.

Aggressive, ruthless Georgi Malenkov, boss of the Communist party's apparatus, is a likely bet. And being a seasoned opportunist, Malenkov might not hesitate to put out of the way anyone who might thwart him.

Steel Attracts Large Support

NEW YORK, April 18—(AP)—Steel stocks attracted large-scale support at the opening of today's market.

Also up were American Telephone, Studebaker, Chrysler, Consolidated Edison, Boeing, Childs, Westinghouse Electric and Southern Co.

Radio Corp. moved up 1/4 to 22 1/4 on a 10,000-share block and Electric & Musical industries gained 1/4 at 3 on 25,000 shares. Lower were Zenith Radio, Philco and Admiral.
